

The Cradle Welcomes Four New Board Members

Steve Whisdosh is a Tax Partner in PwC's Chicago office. He consults with clients and engagement teams in PwC's Mid-Central region on technical issues related to tax accounting methods and periods, including the timing of income and deduction, depreciation, inventory, and leasing. Steve also has significant experience implementing and maintaining technology solutions for clients with large fixed asset and leasing portfolios. Prior to his current role in PwC's Specialized Tax Services practice, Steve served as the lead director on large multinational ASC 740 engagements.

Steve previously participated in a two-year tour in the Federal Tax Services group of PwC's Washington National Tax Services practice. During his tour, he served as a national resource for consultation on technical and procedural issues related to tax accounting methods and fixed assets. He assisted with PwC's edit of BNA U.S. Portfolio 572-4th: Accounting Methods - Adoption and Changes and co-authored an article on revenue recognition that was published in The Tax Adviser magazine.

Steve earned a B.S. in Business Administration, with concentrations in Accounting and Finance and a M.S. in Taxation, from Duquesne University. He is a member of the AICPA and a Certified Public Accountant licensed to practice in Illinois and Pennsylvania. Steve is also a member of the Duquesne University Accounting Advisory Council.

Steve shared the following regarding his connection to The Cradle's mission:

As a father, I understand the power of love and influence that parents have in the lives of their children. Every child deserves the opportunity to live in a loving, safe and supportive environment. I believe that The Cradle's commitment to support families through the adoption process, but also to provide post-adoption support and education is unique and special.